

Shinden

1) the Shinden is the most important building in the palace. The building is all hinoki (Japanese cypress) from the Edo period. It is one of the finest examples of post-Meiji architecture. Chudan-no-ma and Chudon-no-ma. Master Hara Zaisen. Hanging in front of the building. Hara Zaisen, a samurai, was the architect of the building.

Informational sign on the floor, likely providing details about the building's history or the artwork displayed.

